Statement Issued by R. S. Law, President of the U.G.C. Ltd.

R. S. Law, president of United Grain Growers Ltd., issued the following statement on behalf of the Board of Directors of the Company while in Edmonton for the annual meeting of United Grain Growers:

"Impartial inquiry and recommendation obviously by the board of grain commissioners is required to learn if bear raids were made recently on the Winnipeg exchange by outside interests, and if regulation by the exchange against such attempts is needed."

Mr. Law said that it is "obvious that such matters are not to be satisfactorily settled by a series of contradictory statements issued to the press, or by representations by interested parties made directly to the government."

He declared that the board of grain commissioners "commands the respect and confidence of the country" and that the body could be given the status of a commission of inquiry."

Mr. Law said that "the present regulation of grain handling under the provisions of the Canadian Grain Act and the board of grain commissioners represents the accomplishment of years of experience and study and is to be regarded as a substantial and satisfactory achievement. Whatever changes may from time to time be required in connection with grain handling should be based on the solid foundation already established."

NOTE

All members of the Community Club are requested to turn in their twenty-five cents and what they made from it, as soon as possible in order that the books may be audited, before the first of the month.

To Be Relied On

Inaccurate and Misleading Statements

On October 1st, Winnipeg newspapers carried an interview with John L. McFarland, who is in charge of the Government's wheat operations, in which he stated that he would recommend to the Government at Ottawa, that an investigation be made into the selling of wheat on the Winnipeg market and would urge the Government to make representations to the Governments of Argentina and the United Kingdom that they take similar action in regard to the futures market in Buenos Aires and Liverpool.

About October 6, a mischievous dispatch purporting to be the inside story of an organized bear raid on the Winnipeg market during the two previous weeks appeared in many of the leading newspapers throughout Canada. This dispatch originated apparently from some newspaper service in Winnipeg. It made free use of Mr. McFarland's name and its contents would lead many people to believe that figures and supposed facts in it must originate from Mr. McFarland.

W.A. to Hold Bazaar and Supper, Dec. 8

Mrs. E. J. Liesemer was hostess to the Ladies of the W. A. at their monthly meeting held on Nov. 8th, with Mrs. Board and Mrs. Fonger as assistant hostesses. The President occupied the chair with sixteen members and three visitors present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, after which devotionals were conducted by Mrs. Leith.

Arrangements were made to hold a bazaar in the Ingraham Building on Dec. 8th, commencing at three o'clock to be followed by a business man's supper which will be served from five o'clock. The President requested all bazaar work and donations be handed in to Mrs. Mackie or any member of the Sewing Committee as soon as possible.

At the close of the meeting a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses.

Milo News

The three day Chautauqua which closed Nov. 3 drew capacity houses in Milo and Queenstown. The plays were well worth seeing, particularly "Daddy Long Legs" by Arrowwood. Each member of the cast was excellent in the role they portrayed. "His Model Wife" was very entertaining and character very impressive. "Poor Madeline," a fantasy, was a beautiful number, played by Arrowwood rural players.

The audience showed great appreciation for the Vaudeville Revue by Milo High School. The dancers were well trained and executed all their numbers with a great deal of grace and rhythm.

The Rivals played by Queenstown players was a very elaborate play, consisting of five acts, twenty scenes and was well produced, considering the time was so short to prepare it.

Dr. W. G. Carpenter's lecture, "Down North," was most entertaining and educational.

"Little Black Sambo," by the Swastika School, a children's play, was exceptionally well done. Other children's plays that were very much enjoyed were: "The Hollow Tree," by Rocky Buttes School, "The Rose Colored Spectacles" and "Shinbone's Shoe Sale," by Pioneer School.

The readings by Mrs. Lyn Oldfield and Miss Marian Lebeau were well received and we feel that the program could have stood more of these numbers.

The piano solos by Eileen Brinker were a source of pleasure to all music lovers, also the duets by Ruth Northcott and Mr. Cann.

We hope the Local Chautauqua will be with us permanently as an annual affair, to encourage all talent in our young folks and bring to life any that lies dormant for lack of incentive.

Great praise is due Mrs. R. E. McInenly and all other workers for their untiring efforts to make this affair a success.

Mrs. N. St. Peter is visiting at the home of her mother in Champion.

Day of Prayer

Sunday, Nov. 25, has been agreed upon by a great number of individuals, Bible Schools, missions and congregations of various denominations as a special Day of Prayer throughout this continent.

The great revival commenced in the last great panic of 1867. Prayer will again bring blessing. Therefore the Church of the Brethren will co-operate in observing this day of prayer.

The program commences at 10 a.m. and will continue until 4.40 in the afternoon. There will be musical interludes to give opportunity to those who desire to come or go without disturbing the service.

James McKernan Was Third Man To Join The Mounted Police In 1873. Third man to join the old Royal North West Mounted Police when it was formed in Ottawa in the early 70's. James McKernan, 53, died at Edmonton recently.

Criticism Often Unjust

The Ottawa Journal says most of us are quick to criticize the police. And our criticism is often unjust. For the miracle of police work, as it is organized to-day, is not that so many criminals escape, but that so many are apprehended. The public takes note of the few failures; it forgets the thousands of cases where the police succeed.

If you asked J. B. Kinser, United States weather bureau official, to guess what the weather will be for the next 25 years, he'd say: "Colder and wetter."

Kinser, chief of the climatology division, told the Cosmos Club at Washington, there is good reason to suspect the United States (perhaps the world) is on the threshold of a change of climate.

For the past quarter century, he found, the world has had increasing warmth and decreasing rainfall. Records of periods before that show cycles of rising and falling temperature and rain lasting about the same number of years, he said. He believes another turn of the weather time may be imminent.

Motoring On Sunlight

Dutch Inventors Claim Harassed Bays Supply Sufficient Energy

Motoring on sunlight instead of petrol is the latest scientific dream based on a discovery by two Dutch inventors. These men claim to have harnessed the sun's rays and multiplied their power a thousand times in a photo-electric cell, thereby manufacturing sufficient energy to drive a high-powered car or aeroplane engine. Already the sun has been made to work for man in Egypt, where by concentrating its rays on solar boilers enough natural steam is generated to drive low-pressure turbines. This new system will, if practicable bring about an industrial revolution.

World's Noisiest Bird

Cockatoos Can Draw Out Dozen Motor Car Horns

The scream of the peacock can be heard a mile away, but the noisiest bird in the world is the cockatoo. A single bird can make a din which would drown a dozen motor car horns and stir the sound of a steam whistle. The bell-bird of Brazil is runner-up to the cockatoo. This white bird is about the size of a pigeon. It lifts its head in the air and makes a noise that sounds like the bang of a hammer on an anvil.

Our good friends the Japanese appear to have no limit as far as inventive genius is concerned. Napoleon is credited as the originator of using airtight containers for army rations, but the development of the industry is international. Secret Chemical Makes Air Clear In Few Seconds

Lightning rods on fog are fore-shadowed by a secret chemical to which a trial was given recently. When a typical pea-soup specimen loomed up, engineers, having mounted their "guns", an array of centrifugal pipes suspended thirty feet horizontally above the ground fired streams of this liquid into its mist.

In a few seconds a clear path was blazed in the gloom, and while the chemical attack lasted, every fog particle, as it came within range of 2,000 feet, was brought to earth in the form of water. It is anticipated that aerodromes will be among the first to install this new fog-clearing equipment. Already thousands of aerodromes are expended annually on special fog signals and guidance signals.

There is a pleasant touch of surprise in the report that Colonel W. A. Apparently the Colonel was one of those who returned from his victories more or less to his Sabine farm. practically as soon as you swallow it. Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show that Aspirin does not harm the heart. Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. New Aid in Preventing Colds
Leads to Plan for Better
Control of Colds

PLAN EASY TO FOLLOW

Years ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern method of treating colds. Now, Vicks Chemists have developed the ideal companion to VapoRub—Vicks Vapo-nol—the new aid in preventing colds.

These two preparations, together with a few simple directions, form the unique Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. The helpfulness of Vicks Plan in reducing the number, duration and dangers of colds has been clinically tested in practicing physicians. (The Plan is fully explained in each package.)

Here, briefly, is how Vicks Plan works:

To Help Prevent Colds

Watch yourself and children after exposure to any condition apt to be followed by a cold—such as contact with others having active colds—to the public places, stuffy ill-ventilated rooms—sudden changes in temperature, wet or cold, or unaccustomed exposures—excesses in living which lower resistance, such as over-eating, smoking, or drinking—after a hard day when you are overtired.

Then, if you have that stuffy, sneezy, irritation in the nasal passages where most colds start, use Vicks Vapo-nol at once—just a few drops up each nostril. Use in time Vapo-nol helps to prevent many annoying colds, and to throw off colds in their early stages.

To Help Shorten a Cold

If cold has developed or strikes without warning, apply Vicks Vapo-nol over throat and chest at bedtime. Through the skin, Vapo-nol acts directly to a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors are inhaled with every breath direct to the inflamed air-passages. This combined double action through the skin, vapors and phlegm—soothe irritated membranes—relieve the breathing—helps break connection.

During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Vapo-nol every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment without the risks of constant internal dosing, which so often unsettles the digestion—especially of children.

Trial Packages Free

Your druggist has free combination packages containing trial sizes of Vapo-nol and VapoRub—also folder telling how these twin aids to fever and shorter colds are used in Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds.

THE TENDERFOOT

By
GEORGE J. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail",
"The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen near to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been automatically losing the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drifting himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to see what was brewing for himself—himself—not as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Hour-Glass Ranch, but as Duro Stone, tenderfoot. Montgomery Ward whisked out.

Dad Kane, dealer and luckless prospector till now, is returning to tell Dustin and Spike Godfred, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubbed him, of his discovery of a rich lead mine. They are as usual in the office. He sees Broken Spur men rustling Hour-Glass cattle and protests against it.

Spike Godfred and Sam Dustin, fearing the old prospector may tell others the things he has seen as to the branding of Carr's cattle, plot to get him to show them the location of the mine and then to kill him.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Dustin swung about to face a gray little figure that stiffened at sight of him. Sam Peters had been cashier of the Seco Bank for more than thirty years. Scrupulous by descent and cautious by nature, only once had he ventured to stretch his activities beyond Seco. He was like Kipling's muskrat that all his life tried to muskrat courage to run to the middle of the floor. Peters mustered that courage once . . . and Dustin caught him with a loan of five thousand dollars on his house. That loan saved Peters his bank job but it made him the bondslave of Sam Dustin.

"Just a moment, Peters. . . . Dustin drew him aside. . . . "How much money does old man Carr owe you?" Peters asked him to know.

"The bank?" Peters quavered. "He don't owe the bank at all, Mr. Dustin. He did owe the bank but old man Pegram took it up. It's a note and Mr. Pegram's wonderin' right now what to do with it. He's lost a lot of money and needs cash. . . . "How much is the note for?" "Well . . . Old Carr hasn't paid any interest on it for a year. It's about twelve thousand dollars right now. And I'll tell you more. . . . Old man Pegram better let go all holds on it just as soon as he can. Old Carr's in a bad way."

"I've got a five thousand dollar note of yours, Peters," he said. "It's secured by this house and lot, eh?" "Yes, sir. That's so. . . . Something hard in his throat seemed to choke the little gray cashier.

"That note of yours is due next week. I want that note of Carr's that Pegram's got. See?" "I . . . sir . . . I I swear I don't see how I can fix it. It's Mr. Pegram's private business. I . . . "

More than ever did Sam Peters regret that accused ferry in wheat that was to remove him and his wife from any danger of poverty. He made one final wriggle for escape.

"As matters stand, I don't see how I can help you to own a half share of the Hour-Glass ranch. . . . "Half of it? You're a plain fool, Peters. I'll own the whole place! Soda Springs and all," he added. "Old man Carr owns the Hour-Glass, don't you?" "He owns half of it," said Peters. "That's all. When old man Peter Vinton died, he left the Hour-Glass ranch's private, his old partner, an' half to his sister's son, one Gerald Keene. When Carr wanted to borrow on his share of the place, we had to look up the will. That's how I know I saw the will. It says that if either Carr or Keene dies, his half goes to the survivor."

"For the love o' God!" "Dustin was breathless. . . . "Say that again."

Peters said it again and Dustin, sure that he had not misunderstood, took a smoke-screen of profanity. It was not the jovial profanity of good-nature but the virilistic overflow of one who fears he has been hurt and who is not sure of the extent of the injury. In one brief kaleidoscopic moment the failure of his plans seemed sure. If Gerald Keene, the nephew of old Peter Vinton, owned half the Hour-Glass then he, Sam Dustin, even if he succeeded in ousting Joe Carr, was only getting a new partner whom he did not even know.

He sized old Peters and whirled him about in the moonlight to face for the first time through Mr. Butler of the Drovers Bank in Cato but he wrote it that he was handling Mr. Keene's business and that Mr. Keene was travelling somewhere and couldn't be reached just now."

Dustin grunted disbelief but he could do nothing at present. He had plenty of money in the bank and Peters knew it. There was no question of the validity of the check that Dustin wrote at the hotel desk and passed to the gray-faced little cashier who took it shakily. He poured it, refused a cigar and headed for the bank feeling like a condemned criminal who has received notice of an unexpected reprieve.

seen 'em doing up in the hills. I dred men up Red Water? Come into the house. I want to talk to you." Wholly angry, sweating isobates threats at every pore, Kane followed Dustin into the office. Once in the room Dustin turned on him:

"Look here, Dad. . . . His very tone was placating for he had time, to reflect. . . . "It's all my fault. I just couldn't stand seein' our one chance of a fortune go glimmerin' flash and a rusty old six-gun, a cap and ball affair, was thrust under Dustin's nose."

"You keep your hands where they're used to bein' . . . In other men's pockets," snarled the old prospector. "What you want? Hey?"

"To shut your fool head and to keep you from lettin' all the world in on what you found. You damned old fool! Don't you know that one word from Dad, Raynor'll send a hum-land's organization. The article is inaccurate and misleading; there was no condition existing in the trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange that would justify such a story. It reads like fiction and to the best of our knowledge that is just what it is. There is no evidence in the figures showing the market position of grain firms as at Sept. 17 and Oct. 1, secured by the council of the Exchange from the clearing house, and which have been disclosed to Mr. McFarland, that any bear raid was attempted.

Mr. McFarland has also been advised by the council that the international firms whose names have been mentioned in this connection were ready to authorize the clearing house to make the figures showing their trading available to him.

The international investigation suggested by Mr. McFarland on Oct. 1st, should, in our opinion, not be lost sight of. There can be no argument about the fact that our greatest need is to export more Canadian wheat, and if there is any hope that an independent international investigation into the situation in the Canadian, Argentine and English markets will disclose anything in the actions of the government agencies or individuals that is making it difficult for us to market our wheat abroad, it should be undertaken at once, would obviously be in the interests of the whole country as well as of our wheat producers. It would, we are sure, be welcomed by the grain trade of Canada.

The council of the Exchange is prepared to afford facilities for investigation of the trading operations of all its members, without exception, by competent and impartial persons, if such an investigation is deemed to be in the public interests, and has previously advised Mr. McFarland what the Exchange would, in addition lead all possible assistance to a government supervisor of the kind recommended by the Stamp Commission should the Government see fit to appoint one.

The action of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in setting minimum prices for December and May wheat of 75c and 80c per bushel respectively was taken at the instance of the Dominion Government and in pursuance of the policy the Exchange has consistently pursued of co-operating with the Dominion Government and the government wheat agency.

THE WHEAT SURPLUS

The world's "carry-over" of wheat since 1928 has been about 1,100 million bushels each year instead of a normal of 625 million. Authorities estimate that by August 1st next the "carry-over" will be reduced to a figure between 725 and 825 million, or will show over 100 million bushels more than normal. A great shortage of coarse grains, however, is apparent throughout the world. Some expect that a substantial part of the world's wheat "carry-over" will be used to replace coarse grains. If this should occur, no doubt, wheat prices will tend to rise—otherwise they may not do so due to low purchasing power of European bread-eating people.
